

What Is a Protective Order?

A protective order is a civil court order issued by the Court, in order to prevent family violence or threats of family violence to you, your child, or your entire family depending on the circumstances. A protective order can protect against family violence, stalking, human trafficking, and/or sexual assault by ordering the respondent to stay away from you and have no contact with you for a period of up to two years. Family violence includes:

- An act by a member of a family or household that is intended to result in physical harm, bodily injury, assault, or sexual assault to another family or household member OR
- A threat that reasonably places the victim or applicant in fear of imminent physical harm, bodily injury, assault, or sexual assault.

Member of a family or household can apply to relatives, former spouses, foster parents and foster children, individuals who are the parents of the same child, and anyone else living in a house, even if they are not related.
